The 2015 Edupreneur Awards held at the prestigious Duxton Hotel this week recognised, appraised and celebrated businesses and entrepreneurs in industries who are using education as a tool to grow. People who inform, educate, instruct, enlighten or train others, are rightfully deserving of the prestigious title of "Edupreneur".

Barbara McNaught this week won the Edu-preneurs award for her dedication to 'charitable work'. Dressed for success to receive this prestigious award in a body hugging head turning black and gold embellished "Betty Tran" dress the whole room stood to congratulate her humble success.

When asked what this prestigious title meant to her she was quick to answer , "I really appreciate this recognition from my peers .I am delighted to be included in the new initiative of The Edupreneur Awards," said Barbara Mcnaught.

The Eduaward follows the spirit of the iconic theme path most beautifully worded by Hon'ble Nelson Mandela.

To see a woman so dedicated and focused to helping others, I know we will be reading more amazing achievements in the near future of Barbara McNaught and I will be reporting for Australia.USPA24 when that happens, Namaste.
